

Lecture Series for Asylum Seekers

The University of Melbourne invites asylum seekers in our community to attend a lecture series. During September and October we will host lectures on important issues in modern and historical Australia, including education, human rights, equality, health and Indigenous cultures.

We hope that this series will be an interesting introduction to Australian society and the University of Melbourne. Time will be set aside for discussion of topics and to talk with lecturers, students and others.

This is not a formal course and will not lead to a recognised award. Participation will not impact on immigration status and we are unable to assist with immigration matters.

All lectures will be conducted in English and additional assistance will be provided during group discussions to those with low levels of English. Food and drink will be provided.

How to get here:

Tram routes 19 and 59 stop at Haymarket / Elizabeth St.

Tram routes 1, 3, 5, 6, 8, 16, 64, 67 and 72 stop at Lincoln Square on Swanston St.

Paid street parking near the venue is available.

 Tram

Lecture schedule

5.30 - 7.30, Room G08, Melbourne Law School

September 21

Languages

September 28

Australian society

October 5

Human rights & equal opportunity*

October 12

3.30pm: Visit to Melbourne Museum's Bunjilaka

Aboriginal Cultural Centre

Australian Indigenous histories, languages and culture

October 19

Community development, migration & resilience

October 26

History of immigration to Australia*

November 9

Billibellary's Walk & Celebration

*Please note that these two lectures will be held in room 102, Melbourne Law School.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MELBOURNE

Lecture series for Asylum Seekers

5.30pm - 7.30pm,

Mondays during September & October

Melbourne Law School (MLS),

185 Pelham Street, Carlton

Questions?

sophie.rudolph@unimelb.edu.au

For further information about the lectures:

www.socialequity.unimelb.edu.au